1. By 20 November 1949, KNOJ border units along the Austro-Yugoslav frontier were to be replaced by new recruits who will serve with the KNOJ for three years. Reportedly, there were also to be changes in the locations and positions of individual battalions and companies, and it was expected that some new senior officers would be appointed. The KNOJ company in Maribor constitutes the replacement depot through which will pass all the new replacements and the units which have been relieved.

In accordance with a new order, strict surveillance is to be exercised along this frontier, and a sharp look-out is to be maintained for all . Cominform agents attempting to cross into Yugoslavia under the guise of some profession.
